13. Parenting <http://www.archbalt.org/marriage-family/engaged/toolbox/children/parenting-tips.cfm>
- Scripture makes it clear that our first responsibility as parents love our children. Discipline a part of love.
 - We are charged that they are brought up to love God, with an understanding of God expects from his people.
 - See Colossians 3:20-21—"You children, obey your parents in everything as this is the acceptable way in the Lord; and fathers, do not nag your children lest they lose heart."
 - Basic parental guidelines:
Who is in charge?
Children interpret the existence of boundaries as "love".
However, they are always testing the boundaries.
Parents decide when the boundaries are moved (rules are changed).
With older children, it may be appropriate to include them in the discussion -- but the decision belongs to the parents.
 - Agreed upon disciplines must:
Be appropriate to the infraction
Not be the same for all children --each is individual person
Be 'realistic'--can be administered

Be administered with consistency and mercy

Be started as early as possible (set expectations early)

f. Parents are accountable to God for modeling moral life.

Children will follow example not words.

Children spell love "t-i-m-e".
