Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., is well-known throughout the world for his leadership role in the United States Civil Rights movement and his belief in nonviolent social change. He is probably most remembered for his historic “I Have a Dream” speech at the 1963 March on Washington.

However, there can be a rather limited understanding of Martin Luther King, Jr.; his speeches and writings dealt with much more than the Civil Rights movement in the U.S. and the African American community. He had a broader vision of human rights for all people of the world. Few are aware of his outcries against militarism, poverty, and materialism that plagued the U.S. in the 1960s and that continue to do so today.

Martin Luther King, Jr., was a man of deep faith and a prophet. Like all prophets, he had a message of relevance for the people of his time. King’s message is still relevant today, and we are called to listen attentively to his message and to respond.

Quotes by MLK, Jr.

“I learned that the inseparable twin of racial injustice was economic injustice... Here I saw economic injustice firsthand and realized that the poor White was exploited just as much as the Negro.”- Clayborne Carson, ed. The Autobiography of Martin Luther King, Jr., (New York: Time Warner Co., 1998).

“If today’s church does not recapture the sacrificial spirit of the early church, it will lose its authenticity, forfeit the loyalty of millions, and be dismissed as irrelevant social club with no meaning for the 20th century.” - Martin Luther King, Jr. “Letter from a Birmingham Jail,” April 16, 1963.

“A time comes when silence is betrayal. Men do not easily assume the task of opposing their government’s policy, especially in time of war. We must speak with all the humility that is appropriate to your limited vision, but we must speak. For we are deeply in need of a new way beyond the darkness so close around us... We are called upon to speak for the weak, for the voiceless, for the victims of our nation, for those it calls enemy, for no document from human hands can make these humans any less our brothers.” – Martin Luther King, Jr., at the Riverside Church in New York City, 1967

12 Climate Resolutions to take with you into the New Year

By Abigail Austin

January: rethink your food

Start the year by focusing on what you eat. Agriculture accounts for a significant portion of greenhouse gas emissions so even small shifts- like cutting back on meat some days- can help. Eating local food that's in season supports small farmers and reduces the carbon footprint of imported produce. It's a win-win that will have an immediate and positive impact on your health and the pockets of small, organic farmers. Also think about how you store your fresh produce and consider where your scraps end up. If global food waste were a country, it would be the third-largest emitter of greenhouse gases. Composting cuts methane emissions from landfills and turns waste into nutrient-rich soil.

February: care for soil and trees

Healthy soil and thriving trees are potent allies in carbon capture. Local ecosystems absorb CO₂, support biodiversity, and protect against severe weather events like flooding. Clean up a wetland, plant native trees, or join a community garden.

March: throw a 'what should I do?' party

Many people don't realize their potential to contribute. Host a "what should I do?" party to connect friends with action. Untapped talents can inspire collective change, whether lobbying, organizing cleanups, or creating art. Already know your role? Use this month to plan your year of action.

April: reduce energy consumption

Take charge of your energy use. Some providers encourage load-shifting to times when renewable energy is abundant. For instance, running laundry or charging devices during the day taps into plentiful solar power. Over time, these habits lower bills and increase demand for greener energy. If you don't have solar panels, explore renewable energy providers. Some companies source electricity from distributed solar and reinvest profits in local communities

May: organize local swaps or walks

Encourage community bonding and conscious consumerism by organizing a clothing swap. The environmental cost of clothing production is high; swapping saves water and energy while building community. This is a particularly good idea for kid's clothing as most kids grow out of their clothes before they are worn out. Alternatively, start a walking group to foster environmental appreciation and promote active, low-emission lifestyles, or simply start (or join) a community project that makes sense for your skill set and interests.

June: ethical banking

Research banks or investment funds that prioritize renewable energy and divesting from fossil fuels. Ethical investments can shift industries toward sustainability, with 2020 alone seeing a surge in green investments.

July: embrace slow travel

Air travel is one of the fastest-growing contributors to global carbon emissions. A single short-haul flight (E.g. Sydney to Melbourne) generates around 185kg of CO₂ per passenger, while a long-haul flight (e.g. Sydney to London) can emit as much as 2,154kg per economy passenger (although the carbon footprint can vary widely depending on stopovers, plane models and even seating). By skipping a flight and opting for local travel, you can drastically reduce your environmental impact. Why not holiday closer to home and explore hidden gems within driving or train distance?

August: know your reps

Write to your representative, urging them to prioritize climate action. Personalize your messages: share why this matters to your family, include your kids' drawings, or highlight local issues. Politicians are more likely to act when they hear directly from constituents.

September: eliminate single-use items

Commit to phasing out single-use plastics and disposables. Start small: carry reusable cutlery, refuse plastic straws, and invest in long-lasting alternatives like metal razors. The global production of plastics accounts for 1.8bn metric tons of greenhouse gas emissions annually and reducing demand can help stem this tide.

October: bike or hike

Replace short car trips with biking or walking. If distance or fitness is a barrier, consider an electric bike, which emits just 22g of CO₂ per kilometer compared to a car's 271g. Beyond the climate benefits, active travel improves health, reducing pressure on healthcare systems.

November: buy nothing

Challenge yourself to a month of no new purchases. Repair, borrow, or make do with what you have. The consumer economy drives emissions, from manufacturing to transportation. Taking a break from buying reduces your impact and encourages mindfulness about material goods.

December: a conscious Christmas

Christmas is a time of giving, but it can also be a time of overconsumption and waste. Host events to raise money for those in need- carol singing is always a fun and simple one. And why not follow a gift-giving rule for the kids: "Something to wear, something to read, something I want, or something I need." By rethinking holiday traditions, you can cut waste and emphasize what matters most.

Jubilee 2025

Pilgrims of Hope

The Vatican and the city of Rome are expecting an estimated 35 million people to flock to the Eternal City for the 2025 Jubilee Year of Hope - the first ordinary jubilee since the Great Jubilee of 2000. It is also the 2,025th anniversary of the Incarnation of Our Lord.

A jubilee is a special holy year of grace and pilgrimage in the Catholic Church. It typically takes place once every 25 years, though the pope can call for extraordinary jubilee years more often, such as in the case of the 2016 Year of Mercy or the 2013 Year of Faith.

The Jubilee year will offer the faithful opportunities to participate in various jubilee events at the Vatican and in dioceses around the world. The great tradition of opening the Holy Door will begin when Pope Francis opens the Holy Door of St. Peter's Basilica on December 24, 2024. Other holy doors will be opened at the Rome basilicas of St. John Lateran, St. Mary Major and St. Paul Outside the Walls. For pilgrims who cannot travel to Rome, bishops around the world are expected to designate their cathedrals or a popular Catholic shrine as special places of prayer for Holy Year pilgrims, offering opportunities for reconciliation, indulgences and other events intended to strengthen and revive faith. The Jubilee prayer can be found below.

The Jubilee Prayer

Father in heaven,
may the faith you have given us
in your son, Jesus Christ, our brother, and the flame of charity enkindled
in our hearts by the Holy Spirit, reawaken in us the blessed hope for the coming of your Kingdom.

May your grace transform us into tireless cultivators of the seeds of the Gospel.
May those seeds transform from within both humanity and the whole cosmos
in the sure expectation of a new heaven and a new earth,
when, with the powers of Evil vanquished,
your glory will shine eternally.

May the grace of the Jubilee reawaken in us, Pilgrims of Hope,
a yearning for the treasures of heaven.

May that same grace spread the joy and peace of our Redeemer
throughout the earth.

To you our God, eternally blessed,
be glory and praise for ever.

Amen

Servant of God Sr. Thea Bowman, F.S.P.A., Ph.D. 1937-1990

The life of Servant of God Thea Bowman will be celebrated at her alma mater this spring in Washington, where a one-day conference has been scheduled at the Catholic University of America (CUA). The event, under the theme “I Bring My Whole Self,” is scheduled to take place on Saturday, March 28. It was announced by the school and shared publicly by the U.S. bishops’ Subcommittee on African American Affairs earlier this month.

“Join us at the Catholic University of America for a day of celebration, learning, and renewal as we reflect on the life and legacy of one of our most inspiring alumni,” reads a flyer for the gathering on the famed Black Catholic nun.

The event is in partnership with the Sister Thea Bowman Committee, formed in 2020 to promote racial equality at CUA, a school sponsored by the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops.

A convert to the Catholic faith, Bowman was born in 1937 in Mississippi and joined the Franciscan Sisters of Perpetual Adoration as a teenager, moving to Wisconsin for her formation and undergraduate education. She was the first Black member of the order.

Bowman went on to earn a master’s degree in English and a doctorate in English and literature, both at CUA, and taught there as a professor. A major player in the Black Catholic Movement, she became nationally known as an educator, public speaker, and liturgist before dying of breast cancer at age 52 in 1990.

She has since become one of the seven Black Catholics on the path to sainthood, none of whom have yet been beatified.

Formed two years after Bowman's canonization cause, the Bowman Committee undertook a yearlong study of academics and operations at CUA and published a report in 2021. It detailed the state of diversity, equity, and inclusion at the school and made nearly 50 recommendations to university leadership for improvement. Following his hire as CUA president in 2022, Dr. Peter Kilpatrick appointed former CUA Law School Dean Veryl Miles, Associate Vice Provost Dr. Angela McRae, and Center for Cultural Engagement Director Javier Bustamante as facilitators for the report's implementation.

The announcement of the Bowman conference comes ahead of the 35th anniversary of her death, which will be commemorated on March 30. To register for the conference, go to <https://cultural.catholic.edu/bowman-conference.html>.

National Slavery and Human Trafficking Prevention Month

Human trafficking is a horrendous crime and is a form of modern-day slavery that involves the use of force, fraud, or coercion to obtain some type of labor or a commercial sex act. Inducing a minor into commercial sex is always considered human trafficking, regardless of the presence of force, fraud, or coercion. It is a crime under both U.S. and international law and is also illegal in all 50 states in the United States. Due to the clandestine nature of this crime, human trafficking is a underreported problem; the estimated number of victims actively trapped in a human trafficking situation worldwide is uncertain, as is the number of people involved in perpetrating this crime. Estimates vary widely, but the U.S. Department of State puts this number at around 27 million victims worldwide at any given time. Recognizing that perpetrators of this crime often find new tactics, methods, and means to exploit individuals, there is still much unknown about the crime.

The Catholic Church's Anti-Trafficking Efforts

Catholic teaching maintains that human trafficking is an affront to the God-given dignity of each victim, and Pope Francis has described it as “an open wound on the body of contemporary society, a scourge upon the body of Christ.”

The U.S. Catholic Church in particular has been actively engaged in combating human trafficking, recognizing it as a grave violation of human dignity and a modern-day form of slavery. The Church has undertaken various programs, political advocacy, and partnerships to address this issue at different levels, such as:

1. Spreading awareness and education: The U.S. Catholic Church has played a crucial role in raising awareness about human trafficking within Catholic communities and the general public. Parishes across the country have been equipped with programs to conduct educational programs, workshops, and seminars to inform people about the signs, causes, and consequences of trafficking. They aim to equip individuals with the knowledge to identify and report potential cases of trafficking.

2. Direct assistance and support: Many Catholic organizations and religious orders/congregations have established programs to provide direct assistance and support to victims of human trafficking. These programs offer a range of services, including shelter, medical care, counseling, legal aid, vocational training, and support with reintegration into society. Many Catholic Charities agencies have been instrumental in providing these services to survivors.

3. Collaboration and partnerships: The U.S. Catholic Church actively partners with governmental agencies, law enforcement, and various non-governmental organizations to combat human trafficking. It participates in interfaith initiatives, coalitions, and task forces dedicated to eradicating trafficking. These partnerships aim to enhance victim identification, prevention efforts, and the prosecution of traffickers.

4. Public policy advocacy: The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) regularly engages in public policy advocacy to address the systemic issues that contribute to human trafficking. It calls for stronger legislation and policies to protect victims, prosecute traffickers, and address the root cause of trafficking. The USCCB also advocates for comprehensive immigration reform to improve the U. S. immigration system, as vulnerable migrants are often targeted by traffickers.

5. Encouraging ethical supply chains: Recognizing that human trafficking is often linked to forced labor in global supply chains, the U.S. Catholic Church promotes ethical business practices. It encourages the implementation of fair labor standards and supply chain transparency, urging companies and consumers to prioritize products that are not tainted by exploitation. The USCCB cofounded the Coalition of Organizations and Ministries Promoting the Abolition of Slavery at Sea (COMPASS), which has advocated and educated on the issues of maritime trafficking as modern slavery at sea- a violation of the human dignity of laborers within the seafood supply chain and aquaculture industries.

By addressing both the immediate needs of survivors and the root causes of trafficking, the Church strives to create a society where the inherent dignity of each person is respected and protected, from the moment of conception to natural death.

Archdiocese of Baltimore Delegation Packet
National Catholic Youth Conference
Indianapolis, IN, November 20-22, 2025

At the National Catholic Youth Conference (NCYC), high school youth and their adult leaders have the opportunity to gather in the Eucharistic heart of the United States: Indianapolis, host city for the 2024 National Eucharistic Congress!

The National Catholic Youth Conference (NCYC) is the premiere Catholic youth event on a national scale that gathers people from across America for a life-changing encounter with Christ. Thousands of young people and their adult leaders will gather for this powerfully unique three-day experience of prayer, community, evangelization, catechesis, service, and empowerment for Catholic high schoolers and their adult chaperones. At NCYC 2023, there were 12,071 attendees, 242 priests and deacons, 22 bishops, and 130 exhibitors.

NCYC dates to 1983 when it started as a regional conference. NCYC is now offered every year, alternating between Indianapolis, Indiana and Long Beach, California. Indy will be visited yet again in November 2025, by pilgrims walking with (and seeking) Jesus, the Great I AM! (This year's theme is I Am/ Yo Soy.) And the Premier See wants YOU to be there!

What to expect at NCYC:

- Inspiring Speakers! Recent past emcees and keynote speakers include: Sr. Josephine Garrett, CSFN, Katie Prejean McGrady, PJ Anderson, Rhyann Ramirez (Bro Rhy), Steve Angrisano, ValLimar Jansen, Brian Butler, Sr. Jude Andrew, OP, and Fr. John Kartje.
- Breakout sessions that speak to the real-world concerns and hopes of teens and parents, and those who minister with them
- Mass & Adoration – Enter into the Real Presence with thousands, including Bishops!
- Ongoing opportunities for prayer and Reconciliation, including the Sacrament of Confession, Divine Mercy Chaplet, recitation of the Holy Rosary, Eucharistic Adoration, and more!
- Music & Worship – From chant to Gospel, from praise & worship music to holy silence, music during worship at NCYC is top notch. Plus past NCYCs have included entertainment led by artists like For King & Country and Matt Maher!
- Interactive Exhibits – Games, crafts, obstacle courses, service opportunities, meetups, live radio shows, challenges, and much more!
